REPUBLICANS VIEW COMING ELECTIONS AS WET REFERENDUM

Outcome In States May Change Party Policy In 1932

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—While national political leaders here are naturally more interested in the congressional aspect of the oncoming election than they are in purely state contests there are two notable exceptions to that rule—the governorship fights in New York and Pennsylvania.

The politicians' interest in these two battles might be said to exceed that of any senatorial or congressional fight, no matter how outstanding. The reason therefore is not far to seek—it is 1932.

In New York the Republican party has gone wet after ten years of alliance with the drys, nominating in Charles H. Tuttle a wet candidate upon a platform calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The Republican drys have bolted and put up a third ticket.

In Pennsylvania, a large section of the Republican party has bolted the dry candidacy of Gifford Pinchot and served notice of its intention of supporting John M. Hemphill, who styles himself a Democratic-Liberal running on a platform that also calls for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Hence the Republican party in these two large and political powerful states is split as it has not been since 1912. The same is more or less true of Massachusetts, where wet Republicans are bolting the dry senatorial candidacy of ex-senator William M. Butler.

Should Tuttle be elected governor of New York in November, and Pinchot be defeated in Pennsylvania—which many shrewd observers believe possible—it probably means that the New York and Pennsylvania delegations will go to the Republican convention of 1932 prepared to battle for a wet plank in the national platform. Diamond Improves; Refuses To Reveal Assaults

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Jack "Legs" Diamond, the mysteriously-wounded racketeer, was so improved at Polyclinic Hospital today that he was able to smoke a cigarette. Physicians were amazed at his vitality and stamina and now say he has an excellent chance to live.

"Considerable improvement during the night," said a bulletin which was issued at the hospital shortly before 10 o'clock this morning. Condition still serious. The doctors planned to place him on a liquid diet, preparatory to an operation to remove the four bullets from his body. As he lay in bed, improving, Diamond persisted in his refusal to name the two gunmen who shot him last Sunday in the Hotel Monticello.

Diamond is defying the laws of medical science just as he long defied the laws of the land.

While the unexpected retreat from death's door was made by Diamond, investigation of his shooting promised to develop into another Arnold Rothstein case. One by one various clues of the police were investigated and shattered and detectives sent scouting on new theories.

With Diamond's improvement it was expected he would again be questioned by police in a final effort to get him to reveal his attackers. Police said they believed the racketeer knew perfectly well who shot him and why.

The latest person sought for questioning was Waxie Gordon, alias Irving Wexler, said by police to be a leader in New York's bootleg world and a racketeer of parts. He is the man Miss Marion Roberts, chorus-girl friend of Diamond, who was in an adjoining room when he was shot, said had had a conference with Diamond shortly before the shooting. She said he was called "Max" and "Maxie" but police declared Waxie Gordon was the man she referred to.

EXPECT ELABORATE PROGRAM WILL MARK RITES AT BUILDING

Organizations Taking Part In Program Armistice Day

Dedication services for Xenia's newly completed $50,000 state armory in the Dadds Addition will be held Tuesday, November 11, which is Armistice Day, and an appropriate program for the occasion was arranged at a joint meeting of representatives of a number of local patriotic and civic organizations at the Armory Wednesday night.

Paul Fuller, commander of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, was elected chairman and Harry Williams, another Legionnaire, was selected as secretary of the joint committee which, with various sub-committees, will make arrangements for the dedicatory ceremony.

The following eight organizations will also be invited to join in the exercises: Daughters of American Revolution, American Legion Auxiliary, Women's Relief Corps, Downtown Country Club, Sons of Veterans, Daughters of Veterans, Boy and Girl Scouts. Other organizations, represented at Wednesday night's meeting, who will have a prominent part in the program, include the American Legion, Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, Rotary Club, Business and Professional Women's Club and the Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity.

The disclosure was made that State Representative R. D. Williamson, one of the instigators of the movement to procure an armory building for Xenia, and who was influential in obtaining legislative authorization of an appropriation for the structure, has consented to be present at the ceremony and accept the building on behalf of the community.

It is hoped to obtain the services of Adjutant General A. W. Reynolds in formally turning the armory over to Company L on behalf of the state, but whether the adjutant general will be able to accept the invitation is not yet certain.

Selection of the principal speaker on the program will be left to a committee of five persons, composed of Captain C. L. Darlington, a past commander of the American Legion, Ohio Department, as chairman; Captain O. H. Cornwell, commander of Company L, Dr. Dersham of the Legion; Miss Edith Fawcett of the Business and Professional Women's Club, and Forest Hurley, of Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity.

The program will also be featured by a banquet, served cafeteria style, and a dance in the armory in the evening. It was decided. Meals on the cafeteria plan will be provided by representatives of the various women's organizations. The committee to have charge of the dance will consist of Harry Williams, of the Legion, assisted by John Baldwin, Rotarian; Lou McCoy, of the Phi Dels; Robert Finlay, of the Downtown Country Club; Glen McFadden, of the Phi Dels; and also a member of the Phi Delta Theta Sorority.

A program committee which will arrange for the entire service will be composed of Schuyler McClellan, Rotarian, as chairman; Prof.

UMPIRE TESTIFIES AT MURDER TRIAL

WOODSFIELD, O., Oct. 16.—The trial of Ray Biehl, 25, of Summerfield, who is charged with murder in connection with the fatal injury of Joseph Reed, 65, of Swazey, neared its close today as Kenneth Guiler, of Caldwell, testified from the witness stand in behalf of the defense.

Reed was struck over the head with a baseball bat last August 21 at a game at Swazey by Biehl, captain of the Summerfield team. Reed's skull was fractured, causing his death a few days later. Guiler, who umpired the game, told the jury that he believed that Biehl was swinging the bat to force followers of the Swazey team to keep away from the plate rather than trying to strike anyone.

Guiler had called out a batter on the Summerfield team and Reed was upholding the decision, it was said.

Both the state and defense were expected to rest their cases late today or tomorrow.

REMOVAL OF MEMBER OF ELECTION BOARD ASKED BY W. C. T. U.

Secretary Of State Ponders Charges Against Man

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown today has under consideration the request for the removal of Harry C. Arnold, Columbus, Republican, from membership on the Franklin County election board.

Brown conducted hearing in the case late Wednesday. One petition for Arnold's removal is signed by five Columbus women, members of the W. C. T. U. It states that the women were informed that Arnold permitted liquor to be kept in the election board's store-room here. Another petition alleges that Arnold allowed his son to keep liquor in the store room.

Argument in defense of Arnold was presented by Attorney James N. Linton, Columbus. He asserted that the petitions contain no formal charge and contended that the request for Arnold's removal is based upon gossip. Linton asked why the case against Arnold has not been taken into the courts, if it can be proven.

Attorney Charles M. Earhart, Columbus, former attorney for the Ohio Anti-Saloon-League, as counsel for the petition signers, replied: "Because we knew we wouldn't get convictions in this municipal court."

"If liquor got into the election board headquarters without a board member knowing it, he isn't fit to be an election official," declared Earhart.

Cox, head of a Tennessee telephone company, was one of the witnesses under subpoena to appear today at the Nye hearing, now in its second day.

Police admitted they had little or no information which might lead to the solution of the mystery, and said they had been unable to ascertain whether the throat wound was self-inflicted or not.

They were inclined, however, to follow the theory that Cox was wounded by assailants who gained entrance into the room.

AWAIT DECISION IN SUIT PROTESTING CHOICE OF MARBLE

Trial Is Completed Wednesday; Bettman Defends State

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15.—Announcement of the decision is awaited today in the suit in which Thomas W. Dent, a local taxpayer, seeks to order enjoining the use of Georgia marble in the construction of the proposed state office building here.

Trial of the case before Common Pleas Judge Charles A. Leach was completed late Wednesday. Presenting the closing argument, on behalf of the state, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman defended the action of the state office building commission in selecting marble after rejecting proposals that Ohio sandstone or limestone be used.

Representatives of the Cleveland Quarries Co. joined Dent in the contention that selection of marble was illegal and that, under Ohio laws, the commission was bound to choose Ohio materials.

Bettman argued that the statutes give the commission power to use its discretion in the selection of materials. He claimed that the commission has a right to choose materials produced in another state if, in the judgment of the commission, Ohio materials are not suitable.

BRAZIL GOVERNMENT LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN TO END REVOLUTION

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 16.—The federal government of Brazil launched forth today upon its long planned campaign to stamp out revolutionary activity in the various states.

Amidst scenes of patriotic fervor and gait festivity, the first reserve battalions called to the colors by President Washington Luis' mobilization order, embarked at Central Station for the Minas Geraes sector, where insurrectionist forces seem to have concentrated.

The departing troops marched through streets lined by wildly cheering civilians, and sang patriotic songs as the long trains pulled out of the terminal for the front.

Thousands of other reserves meanwhile were placed in training for thirty days before being sent into action. In another few weeks, it was estimated, the government will have a formidable army in the field ready to cope with any opposition.

The capital received reports from southern sources that the treasury of the rebels in Minas Geraes was exhausted. A state loan, it was added, was floated by the revolutionary government, but the issue was not covered by the citizens.

Army authorities reported that prisoners captured on the Minas Geraes front were hungry and scantily clad, without shoes or shirts.

The federal government stated that its troops continued to advance at most points in the south, but that little fighting occurred.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 16.—The civil war in Brazil apparently offered its participants a respite today after the heavy fighting of the last forty-eight hours.

The headquarters of both factions issued the usual statement that their troops had advanced on all fronts. While the federal government claimed capture of important towns in the state of Minas Geraes, the rebel leaders reported their troops penetrating consistently into Sao Paulo, capturing a large amount of federal ammunition and other supplies.

Other advices indicated that the casualties in isolated combats of the Sao Paulo front in the last forty-eight hours amounted approximately to thirty dead and 200 wounded, with prisoners taken on each side.

Rebel headquarters emphatically denied the death of General Miguel Costa, leader of the revolutionary forces along the Sao Paulo-Parana border, who reportedly fell in battle two days ago.

The resolutions committee will report to the gathering on the recommendation of the executive council for modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 beer. The committee has also heard advocates of repealing the eighteenth amendment outright, to which the "steering wheel" of the convention has definitely recorded opposition.

Several drys have appeared before the committee but they have indicated support for the 2.75 program if a repeal plank is not included.

Election of officers and selection of the convention site for 1931 will be taken up this afternoon.

William Green, president of the federation, and members of the executive committee, are not expected to be opposed.

Columbus, O., is leading as a candidate city for the next convention with Los Angeles and Detroit close behind.

Immediate relief for unemployment was voted by the delegates together with a resolution calling for the appointment of a national employment committee by President Hoover.

Governors, mayors, civic and labor bodies would appoint supplementary committees to aid in the national unemployment relief, according to the recommendations which were adopted.

Watson and Stanger were apprehended as an outgrowth of raids conducted by state and federal prohibition agents Tuesday afternoon.

PILOT'S BODY FOUND; CRASH DUE TO STORM

Air Mail Aviators Locate Plane Sent Down By Blizzard

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 16.—The body of Lieut. William W. Caldwell, Oakland, Calif., army flyer, was found in his wrecked plane at a point one and one-half miles north of Lookout, thirty miles northeast of Laramie, shortly before 9 o'clock this morning.

Lieut. Caldwell was the victim of a fall Wyoming blizzard. He apparently lost control of his ship in the storm late yesterday afternoon and had crashed to the ground in the rolling sage brush country. Caldwell's body was badly mangled but there were no signs of burns about him. The plane was damaged.

Lieuts. Maskimon and Boyd of the air mail service located the wrecked plane shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. Maskimon was flying an air mail plane eastward and Boyd was in a searching plane. They were close together when they sighted Caldwell's wrecked plane.

Caldwell, accompanying Lieutenant Irving A. Woodring, who was carrying Japan's ratification of the London treaty from Victoria, B. C., to New York, became separated from his companion in a snow storm in southwestern Wyoming Wednesday afternoon. Lieutenant Woodring arrived safely at Laramie at 1:30 p. m. and, after an hour and a half, was able to resume his flight to Cheyenne.

Amidst scenes of patriotic fervor and gala festivity, the first reserve battalions called to the colors by President Washington Luis' mobilization order, embarked at Central Station for the Minas Geraes sector, where insurrectionist forces seem to have concentrated.

The departing troops marched through streets lined by wildly cheering civilians, and sang patriotic songs as the long trains pulled out of the terminal for the front. Thousands of other reserves meanwhile were placed in training for thirty days before being sent into action. In another few weeks,

LABOR FEDERATION VOTES ON PROPOSAL FOR RETURN OF BEER

Expect Sparks Will Fly As Resolution Is Discussed

CONVENTION HALL, Boston, Oct. 16.—Wet and dry sparks were expected to fly today when the American Federation of Labor convention passes on the prohibition question.

The resolutions committee will report to the gathering on the recommendation of the executive council for modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 beer. The committee has also heard advocates of repealing the eighteenth amendment outright, to which the "steering wheel" of the convention has definitely recorded opposition.

Several drys have appeared before the committee but they have indicated support for the 2.75 program if a repeal plank is not included.

Election of officers and selection of the convention site for 1931 will be taken up this afternoon.

William Green, president of the federation, and members of the executive committee, are not expected to be opposed.

Columbus, O., is leading as a candidate city for the next convention, with Los Angeles and Detroit close behind.

Immediate relief for unemployment was voted by the delegates together with a resolution calling for the appointment of a national employment committee by President Hoover.

Governors, mayors, civic and labor bodies would appoint supplementary committees to aid in the national unemployment relief, according to the recommendations which were adopted.

PILOT'S BODY FOUND; CRASH DUE TO STORM

Air Mail Aviators Locate Plane Sent Down By Blizzard

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 16.—The body of Lieut. William W. Caldwell, Oakland, Calif., army flyer, was found in his wrecked plane at a point one and one-half miles north of Lookout, thirty miles northeast of Laramie, shortly before 9 o'clock this morning.

Lieut. Caldwell was the victim of a fall Wyoming blizzard. He apparently lost control of his ship in the storm late yesterday afternoon and had crashed to the ground in the rolling sage brush country. Caldwell's body was badly mangled but there were no signs of burns about him. The plane was damaged.

Lieuts. Maskison and Boyd of the air mail service located the wrecked plane shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. Maskison was flying an air mail plane eastward and Boyd was in a searching plane. They were close together when they sighted Caldwell's wrecked plane.

Caldwell, accompanying Lieutenant Irving A. Woodring, who was carrying Japan's ratification of the London treaty from Victoria, B. C., to New York, became separated from his companion in a snow storm in southwestern Wyoming Wednesday afternoon. Lieutenant Woodring arrived safely at Laramie at 1:30 p. m. and, after an hour and a half, was able to resume his flight to Cheyenne.

HOLD COMMUNISTS ACCUSED OF ATTACK

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 16.—R. T. Pierce and J. I. Whitten, two reputed Communists, were under arrest today on riot charges as the aftermath to a demonstration against Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war.

Police took Whitten and Pierce into custody as they jumped on the running board of Secretary Hurley's automobile as it was passing through the streets here. They are said to have hurled insulting remarks at occupants of the automobile.

A crowd of 100 or more persons followed as officers took the pair to the police station.

Conviction on the charges lodged against the two men carries a penitentiary sentence of from two to ten years.

THREE CENT CUT IN GASOLINE ORDERED

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16.—A cut of three cents in the price of gasoline throughout Cuyahoga County ordered by nearly all of the major oil companies, was placed into effect today.

Heavy competition and overproduction in the gasoline industry was given as the causes of the drop in the prices by managers of the Cuyahoga County stations.

The cut fixes the price of standard grade gasolines at 16 cents a gallon and 19 cents a gallon for ethyl compounds.

PRISONER ENDS LIFE

PRINCETON, W. Va., Oct. 16.—Frank Fanning, a prisoner in the Mercer County Jail, is dead today after hanging himself in his cell Tuesday. Fanning was awaiting trial for murder in connection with the slaying of his brother-in-law, Waldo Martin, at Athens on September 2.

LIBRARIANS MEET

DAYTON, O., Oct. 16.—More than 800 delegates from Middle Western states arrived here today for the annual joint convention of the Ohio and Indiana Library Association. The meeting will continue until Sunday.

MAKING IT EASY

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 15.—Chasers of college degrees should be presented with diplomas as soon as they register, in the opinion of Dr. W. J. Warner, associate professor of applied Christianity at Ohio Wesleyan University here.

"Colleges would then consist only of students who take courses in order to get something from them," he explained. As a further means of providing for the "loafers," Dr. Warner suggests that all "snap" courses be marked with a star in the university schedule bulletin.

COLUMBUS WILL BE DRY FOR GAME

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—The huge crowd of alumni, students and fans who will attend the annual Ohio State-Michigan football game here Saturday afternoon will be the object of a concerted drive by the state department of prohibition and the Columbus police department in an effort to "dry up" the crowd of grid enthusiasts.

Deputy State Prohibition Commissioner W. V. Aldrich has announced that the department will cooperate with the local police force in making the game a "dry" affair.

State agents and police will be on duty at Ohio Stadium Saturday with strict orders to arrest anyone violating the liquor laws, Aldrich said. After-the-game celebrations also will be dry, "if we can make it so," he stated.

PAIR PLEAD GUILTY

Pleading guilty to charges of possessing liquor, Floyd Watson, operator of a reputed roadhouse on the Cedarville-Clifton Road, and William Stanger, Yellow Springs, both colored, were each fined $400 and costs by Probate Judge S. C. Wright Wednesday and were ordered committed to the Dayton Workhouse until the assessments are paid.

Watson and Stanger were apprehended as an outgrowth of raids conducted by state and federal prohibition agents Tuesday afternoon.

XENIA WATERWORKS PLANT IS PRAISED AT STATE CONVENTION

ENROUTE to Dayton to attend the fourth annual Ohio Conference on Sewage Treatment, to be held at the Hotel Miami Thursday and Friday, a delegation of chemists and superintendents of municipal waterworks plants in various parts of the state, who were present at the two-day meeting of the Ohio Conference on Water Purification at Columbus this week, visited the iron removal plant of the Xenia municipal plant of Old Town Thursday morning.

An address on Xenia's iron removal plant was delivered by W. H. Knox, assistant engineer of the state department of health, at Tuesday afternoon's session of the annual conference at Columbus, and photographs of Xenia's plant, considered one of the most attractive waterworks installations in the state, were shown to the approximately 100 delegates in attendance.

Declaring that Xenia's plant is of interest on account of the present day demand for improvement of public water supplies, Mr. Knox told the delegates that one of the major improvements needed at many municipalities is the removal of iron from the public water supply derived from ground water sources.

The engineer complimented the Xenia installation as being a good example of a standard plant iron removal plant, plant equipment including devices for aeration, sedimentation and filtration while the average iron content of the raw water is about 1.1 parts per million.

The water is obtained from four ten-inch and two twelve-inch wells. One twelve-inch well is 110 feet deep and the other wells are between seventy-five and eighty feet in depth. The aerators have recently been rebuilt.

Pointing out that the city of Xenia is considering softening of its public water supply in the near future, the engineer declared it will be possible to incorporate all of the units of the existing iron removal plant practically without alteration into the proposed water softening plant.

Devices to be added would include chemical feed devices, mixing chambers and additional settling basin capacity. At present the plant is so constructed that the softening of water can be delayed until the public demands soft water or until the finances of the municipality permit the installation, he said.

"There is one unusual feature in connection with the Xenia plant," elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

asserted Mr. Knox. "This is the beautification and landscaping of the grounds surrounding it. The appearance of the plant and its surroundings justifies the local pride in the plant. The beauty of the grounds of the Xenia plant is unexcelled at any waterworks plant in the state, regardless of the size of the municipality, and only the largest plants in Ohio have grounds which approach it in beauty."

"When the plant was built at this location in 1920 the grounds were merely overgrown fields part of which were swamp lands. Now the grounds might be mistaken for a private estate. Shrubs, trees, terraces, walks, drives and fountains have all been carefully laid out to enhance the general appearance. The building was constructed of paving brick but the brick has been covered with ivy and the architecture of the building and the terraces around it is such that the building blends in with its surroundings."

"The grounds at the Xenia plant might well be emulated by many other waterworks in Ohio. The general public often gains its impression of the quality of a water supply from the appearance of the plant structures. Maintaining a water plant and grounds in a condition where one is proud to exhibit them to the public will often emphasize to the public the importance of the waterworks as a utility and also incidentally the importance of having competent officials in charge of such work."

A visit to the Xenia waterworks is well worth while merely to observe the surroundings of the plant. The local system is under the superintendence of M. C. Smith, city manager, while William H. Harrison, chief engineer at the pumping station, has served in such capacity for the last twenty-five years."

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c to-day at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. H. L. Sayre. Adv.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

ALL POWER—And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.—Matt. 28:18.

SOLDIERS AND WAR

An idea of the way in which men of military experience regard war was given at a church service held in connection with the American Legion convention at Boston, in an address by Gen. Everson, chief of the U. S. militia bureau. Gen. Everson denied that soldiers start wars, and he said that no one hates war more than the soldier who has been through it.

His idea was that wars are due to "Under cover treaties," to racial hatreds, and various manifestations of selfishness.

It would seem as if this military leader had about the right idea. There would never be any wars, if the statesmen and diplomats of the various countries could discuss their problems in a spirit of mutual tolerance and adjustment. It is the same as it is in labor controversies. If the employers and employees of an industry have friction, but if each side has a disposition to make compromises and concessions, they are likely to avoid any strike. Labor difficulties are created by capitalists and wage-earners who will make no concessions.

It is just the same with international quarrels. They are created when the statesmen of the various countries refuse to make concessions to each other. They show an uncompromising spirit that makes trouble anywhere it is manifested. Husbands and wives, parents and children, employers and employees, have to see each other's point of view, if they are going to work together harmoniously and avoid trouble.

When the statesmen of any nation take the position that they will consider the interest and rights of that nation alone, and will not give any consideration to the interests and rights of other nations, then they pursue a course that leads straight for trouble. It may not lead directly into war, but it creates those antagonisms in which the war making spirit grows, so that a war may be finally provoked by some relatively unimportant incident.

PESSIMISM AND OPTIMISM

Business men are apt to alternate between states of mind of buoyant optimism or profound pessimism. Things are all white or else all black. Just at present some business men and speculators see all black. They keep quoting various influences that have a disturbing effect, like unrest in China, India, and South America. Or they talk about the low prices of commodities and partial failure of farm relief.

These blue points of view studiously ignore the bright sides of the picture. Depressions never last long. The turbulent countries of Asia and South America blow up once in a while, but they are already quieting down.

The reason why business is quiet, is that people are going slow about purchases, fearing the future. The mere decline of demand for goods from foreign lands accounts for only a small part of whatever decline in business has occurred. Just as soon as people buy in advance of their absolute needs, as they usually do, business will start up in its usual volume.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

PUT YOURSELF TO SCHOOL

Twenty-one thousand car owners answer questions, telling the New York Automobile club the chief faults that drivers have. Driving in the middle of the road heads the list. Edging by a line of cars in traffic ranks high. Turning without hand signals comes in for heavy condemnation. Trying to beat the traffic light is a dangerous and common fault. We will all do well to check up on our own driving. What is our worst offense and why? Let's break ourselves of bad driving habits. Let's get out of the morose class as fast as we can.

ON THE RIGHT FOOT

John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton, speaking at the beginning of the university's 184th year, points out that the acceptance of the responsibilities and duties of citizenship is "part of the tradition of Princeton." It should be part of the tradition of every university. Put the idea into the new student's mind that his education is to prepare him for the acceptance of the duties of citizenship, as well as to give him the inner satisfactions of knowledge, and you have started him "on the right foot."

President Spencer, of Hillsdale college, one of the best of small colleges, makes the first chapel of the year almost as impressive as commencement. He wants new students to get the idea they have come to college for a great life experience. He, too, believes in starting students on the right foot, teaching them that college is not to be taken lightly, as just four more years of football and social activities.

WHAT MONEY DOESN'T DO

Why is it that the great schools, colleges, universities that have the most millions in gifts and endowment are the ones that have the reputation for being so expensive the poor man's son doesn't even dare to send in his name? Why do the poor have to send their children—if they send them at all—to small and ill-equipped colleges—institutions that have little money with which to do things well? Something wrong somewhere in the distribution of funds or the purposes of philanthropists. If a multi-millionaire wants to give away ten millions he is more likely to give it to Yale or Harvard than to any one of a score of small colleges where it is needed a great deal and where it would help to educate the sons and daughters of the poor.

We read much about the difficulty of giving away money intelligently. Evidently it is indeed hard.

LOOSE FIGURES

People—Americans especially—love statistics. And we have a way of being impressed by them. We believe it when some investigator exclaims that the cost of crime in the United States is ten billion dollars a year. Of course such figures are rough estimates. They indicate only a trend. Dieudonne, clever Frenchman, says we have a great fond for "round numbers." He reads that the great drought cost us "five million dollars a day." A man who sues another man for stealing his wife's attentions is entitled to $4,000, no more, no less. We like to dispose of things thus neatly.

When you hear broad statistics, do a little thinking yourself, and a little investigating, too, if you can, and see if they are reasonable.

Pulitzer

Who was Joseph Pulitzer? Joseph Pulitzer was an American journalist born in Budapest, Hungary, April 10, 1847. His father was a Jew and his mother a Roman Catholic. At 17 he emigrated to the United States, where he served in the Civil war and then became a reporter on the Westliche Post in St. Louis, Mo. In 1876-77 he served as Washington correspondent of the New York Sun and afterwards spent some time in Europe as a special correspondent for the same paper. In 1879 he bought the St. Louis Evening Dispatch and the Evening Post, combining them as the Post-Dispatch. His greatest work was in the development of the New York World, which he acquired from Jay Gould in 1883, building up a circulation which had no rival until the advent of the Hearst newspapers, and proving an important factor in the presidential election of Grover Cleveland. He gave $1,000,000 to Columbia university for the building and endowment of a school of journalism. He died Oct. 9, 1911.

Atlantis

Where is the lost Atlantis? According to an ancient tradition, Atlantis was a large island situated in the Atlantic ocean over against the Pillars of Hercules. It is first mentioned by Plato, who describes it as the home of a powerful nation existing 9,000 years before his time, and which was finally engulfed by the sea. Plato gives a glowing description of the island and its fabulous history. The account of Plato has been considered by some as a pure invention of the author's imagination, while others have looked upon it as a real tradition. Various attempts have been made to identify the island. The Canary Islands, the Scandinavian peninsula, the American continent and Crete have all been thought to be the land in question.

Valentino

What was Rudolph Valentino's last picture and will any of his pictures be shown again? Rudolph Valentino died after making "The Eagle." From time to time a Valentino picture is re-shown. A letter to the United Artists in New York might give information of possible future showings.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—Thirty years ago, Frankie Bailey was known as the woman with the finest pair of legs on Broadway. She was a member of the Weber and Fields aggregation. When the famous music hall closed Frankie Bailey drifted out with the gang and for the 25 years we've been hearing of her here, there and everywhere, engaged in the most outlandish endeavors.

A couple of years ago she came back to New York and for a time had a job as hostess in one of the big hotels. Then her health failed, her luck broke, and today, at the age of 71, she's living in a little furnished room down on the Jersey Coast, nearly destitute.

ADVENT OF PRICE TAG

The democracy of the price tag is more or less a recent development on Fifth Avenue. Some years ago its merchant princes were set on having the street famed as the rendezvous of the rich.

Then old man Woolworth came along with his red sign, his jelly-ban basement and the artificial paper flowers in the front window. Old Lady Childs had preceded Woolworth on Fifth Avenue, and even old lady Childs shuddered the pancake griddle into the background as a bow to the Fifth Avenue prejudice against the plebeian.

It was different with Woolworth. He couldn't follow the Childs precedent and trim his sails. Reduce the hue of the red-headed Woolworth sign by one tone, and the glad, effulgent don't-give-a-dam air of the institution would be gone forever.

The Fifth Avenue crowd spent many a sleepless night when F. W. stuck his bean above the horizon of their sweet-scented, stained-glass billion-dollar-bailwick.

But fate had arranged things so that neither Woolworth could match the Merchant Prince, nor could he for dollar-and, after all, that about discussing her past.

DISASTER TO ENGLISH DIRIGIBLE FINDS U. S. EXPERTS IN DISPUTE OVER MERITS OF HUGE AIR LINERS

WASHINGTON.—Aviation is a difficult subject for inexperienced to approach with any prospect of obtaining much information that it can rely on.

Fliers are such fans that it is hard not to suspect them of over-enthusiasm—a suspicion in which experience finds some expert encouragement; capable army and navy men, of the old school, but well versed in aeronautics possibilities, while recognizing aviation as highly important to both their services, nevertheless insist that many of the claims made for it are vastly exaggerated. Replying, however, the flying enthusiasts refer to these old timers as has-beens. How is inexperience to judge between them?

There also is the dispute between flying men themselves—as to the relative merits of heavier-than-air craft.

This controversy has been in full eruption lately, due to England's recent loss of the R-101, but it is no nearer a settlement than ever, because of the British dirigible's use of hydrogen, admittedly dangerous; whereas non-combustible helium (obtainable only in the United States) is chiefly employed here—and likely to be exclusively employed henceforward, as a sequel to the R-101's destruction.

True, the army and navy consensus is that the R-101 explosion was simply incidental to some other accident and not primarily responsible for the catastrophe. Hydrogen likewise has the advantage of 15 to 20 per cent greater lifting capacity than helium.

For all that, the military preference of the inert gas is unmistakable.

Heavier-than-air craft exponents naturally point to the R-101's fate in support of their longstanding criticism of lighter-than-air vessels as necessarily fragile. Advocates of the latter type, though careful to avoid comment suggestive of a poor opinion of British construction or navigation, evidently entertain doubts of the British dirigible's airworthiness and perhaps of the competency of its handling.

At any rate, Rear Admiral Moffett's prompt denial of any intention on the United States navy's part to modify the plans of America's dirigible construction at Akron, O., generally was interpreted as implying officialdom's belief that the R-101's weaknesses, if any, already had been guarded against in Uncle Sam's newest design.

means something on the Rue de la Quince.

NOW A PLAY

Countless versions of the "love" story of "Frankie" and "Johnnie" have been waited up and down the land, some vibrantly imaginative, most of them overlaid with a melancholy mediocrity, distressing in the extreme.

It remained for dear old Broadway to hammer a stage production out of the ballad and for the literati of The Lane to plunge into research along the "Frankie and Johnnie" trail that has resulted in a book by that name, the author being John Huston.

A trail of that character naturally would end in disillusion. "Frankie," at the age of fifty-eight, is supposed to be running a shoe-shining parlor in Portland, Ore., and is said to be "touchy" for dollar-and, after all, that about discussing her past.

The commerce department's view of aviation problems, as might be expected, is somewhat different from army and navy experts'.

The military contingent, of course, are prepared to take risks. Yet even among army (more particularly than navy) men, lighter-than-air craft, obviously are looked on more askance than previously, since the R-101 disaster. "Too vulnerable for front line work," is the verdict—outside the circle of the actual dirigible designers.

"They have one advantage—they can hover," it is agreed, "but, in the main, their sphere of usefulness is toward the rear, for the hurry-up transport of supplies and officers over roadless or automobile congested areas."

Without any especial hostility to dirigible travel, commerce department aviation's interest always has been centered principally upon airplane development.

Europe, Secretary Lamont's flying experts concede, may offer a field for lighter-than-air transportation—many big cities, close together; a dense population, furnishing passengers in considerable numbers, with a limited amount of freight as a side line.

In the new world, however, it is

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

BUSY BUMPS INTO A SPY

Actions speak louder than words in Ant-Hill Town. And in a jiffy Busy was hoof-footing it toward the dairy, Peter close at her heels, anxious to see what happened when Busy milked a cow. When she had gone but a few paces Busy stopped in her tracks and spoke over her shoulder.

"I hope we will find everything all right, I fear trouble."

Busy spoke solemnly. Peter was startled.

"What sort of trouble?" asked he. "Do, for mercy's sake, be careful, Busy. There's no sense in running into danger."

"No, I suppose not." For a second Busy seemed ready to turn back. Then she straightened her shoulders. "Nor is there any sense in imagining trouble where there may be none. The wisest thing to do is to keep a straight course until there's some reason to turn aside. The whole thing's this: Yesterday I happened to bump into an enemy scout, and well I knew he'd been spying on our dairy. Doubtless she knows exactly how many cows we have, and the chances are that one of these days the enemy will storm our town and unless we can defend ourselves they will steal our cows and drive them back to their own ant-hill. We don't fear the neighboring tribe—they are only black ants, like our selves—but our chances would be mighty slim if the terrible red ants should swarm down upon us."

"No use in bow-wow trouble," remarked Peter, who was sure Busy was frightening herself by her own wild stories.

"Right!" cried Busy, cheering up at once. "I shall fight when the time comes, or I shall run away, but now—forward, march!"

questioned if an adequate volume of mass patronage is available.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Stuffed Veal Chops
Scalloped Potatoes
Broccoli with Hollandaise Sauce
Pineapple Salad
Sand Tarts
Tea

Use this menu for a guest luncheon or dinner. Pineapple salad may be made by using the sliced pineapple sprinkled either with finely chopped nuts or cheese balls.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Veal Chops—Have the chops cut thick, about an inch. Wipe off with a damp cloth and place in a greased baking pan. Prepare a force meat of one and one-half cups uncooked chicken breast put through the fine blade of the grinder, one cup dried bread crumbs, three-fourths cup chicken stock, two egg whites beaten stiff, one teaspoon salt and a dash of cayenne. Cook the crumbs and stock to a paste, add the other ingredients and spread thickly over each chop. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, for 20 minutes, then reduce the heat to moderate, 350 degrees, and continue cooking for 25 minutes. If the chops seem a little dry, baste with melted butter and water, or with some of the chicken stock.

Broccoli with Hollandaise Sauce—Sauce: One-half cup butter, three egg yolks, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon white pepper, one-half cup boiling water. Beat the butter to a cream, add the unbeaten egg yolks one at a time, and beat well between each addition. Add lemon juice and seasonings. About five minutes before serving time add the boiling water, a little at a time, stirring constantly. Place over hot water and cook until sauce thickens like a boiled custard.

Tie the broccoli in a single thickness of cheesecloth and drop into boiling water, or steam over boiling water. Remove in exactly 15 minutes and serve at once. Overcooking will give the vegetable a strong, undesirable flavor.

Sand Tarts—One-half cup shortening, one cup sugar, one egg, beaten, one and three-fourths cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one egg white, one tablespoon sugar, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, blanched almonds. Cream shortening, and add sugar slowly, then the beaten egg. Sift the flour and baking powder together and add. Chill. Roll out a small portion of the dough at a time, just as thin as possible, and cut with a doughnut cutter. Brush over with the slightly beaten egg white, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon mixed together, and decorate with the split halves of the almonds. Place on a greased sheet and bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, until a delicate straw color.

Removing Ink Stains—Ink stains can be removed from the fingers by rubbing with a cloth moistened with household ammonia. Rinse the hands in clear water afterwards. Lemon juice is an excellent remover of rust stains from white fabrics.

Follow Instructions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FIRST, THE diabetic patient should realize that with faithful observation of instructions, the diabetic condition will improve. Few cases of cure are on record, and in most instances treatment will have to be continued for life. But treatment definitely prolongs life, and makes the condition better.

Second, the life expectation of the diabetic depends on intelligence and character. The diabetic life is not an easy one: it is monotonous to have to weigh food and be on a diet indefinitely—your doctor realizes that. Those who give up fall. Diabetes is death to fools, faddists, cowards and weaklings.

Third, the patient must know how to calculate diets. A table of all common foods, showing how much carbohydrate, fat and protein each contains is necessary. Such a table is found in all the manuals for diabetic patients listed in my Monday article. The patient must have a small kitchen scale to weigh the food on. In the course of time this becomes so familiar that the weighing can be dispensed with—the patient can tell quite accurately by sight how much a piece of bread, an orange or an egg weighs.

Fourth, how to test the urine for sugar. For this a glass test tube, an alcohol lamp, a medicine dropper, and a supply of Benedict's solution is necessary. Benedict's solution is made up as follows:

Copper sulphate (pure crystallized) 17.3 grams, sodium or potassium citrate 173 grams, sodium carbonate (anhydrous) 100 grams, distilled water sufficient to make 1000 c. c.

The citrate and carbonate are dissolved together, in about 700 c. c. of water, with the aid of heat. The copper sulphate is dissolved separately in 100 c. c. of water. After the complete solution, the copper solution is poured slowly into the other and mixed with constant stirring. The mixture is then diluted to 1000 c. c. with the rest of the distilled water. It will keep indefinitely.

To test for sugar put a teaspoonful (5 c. c.) of the Benedict's solution in a clean test tube. Eight drops of urine are added. The mixture is boiled over the alcohol flame. If sugar is present a green or orange cloud (precipitate) occurs. If there is no sugar the mixture remains clear.

The patient must also learn the importance of collecting and measuring a 24-hour specimen of urine. The urine voided, after meals should be kept separate. Under treatment the urine voided before the noon meal (the evening urine, M.), that until the evening meal (the afternoon urine, A.), that until retiring (the evening urine, E.) and that after retiring and including the before breakfast voidance (the night urine, N.) should be examined for sugar separately. Thus the particular time or meal when too much carbohydrate has been taken or too little insulin given, can be determined.

Fifth, many patients need insulin and must learn how to give it to themselves. It is always given hypodermically by a hypodermic syringe. How to give the injection without causing infection is the essential part.

Sixth, the care of the skin and feet should be learned. Some of the most troublesome complications are boils or carbuncles anywhere on the skin, and gangrene and infection of the toes.

(EDITORS NOTE: Dr. Clendenning cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up in order in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendenning, care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.)

Widow Advised To Wed

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Heart Hungry, that phrase grips one, doesn't it? We may be visualizing a young man or woman who cannot make friends or attract lovers. It may be a child who for some reason lacks the love of parents. It may be older people who are bereft of their mates, or who have never had a life companion.

And it may be a man or woman who yearns to have children to love and cherish and who can never have them.

Very few people quite escape heart hunger at some time in their lives. Sometimes, it is necessary to accept the fact that the hunger never will be satisfied. Then it is we have, for our own happiness, safety, even—resort to what the psychologists call a "constructive compromise."

The following letter tells of one woman who is seeking relief from her heart hunger:

Dear Virginia Lee: You have such a happy way of solving other people's troubles, so I'm bringing my problem to you.

"Am a widow by death and have children. Have gone out some, but never without the children. Have done no wrong, yet know the other widows in the neighborhood, of which there are many, have made remarks."

"Now, Virginia Lee, what I want to know is, is this wrong? I do want to marry, and could and would make a wonderful home for a good man, a lonesome man like 'Troubled H.' If he, in return, would take an interest in my children."

"It is terrible to be so lonesome for a companion of your own age. Life is hard at the best, but with a pal many of the hard places become easy. Please do not put this up in the scrap basket. I will anxiously await your answer."

"Heart Hungry." I know just how you must feel, Heart Hungry, and see nothing wrong or unusual in the fact that you want to marry again. If you have had some attempt from men since your husband died, as you imply, it may be these other widows are a little envious, as they, too, may be heart hungry. Try to think that and you won't feel so unkindly toward them if they make slurring remarks. At the same time, ignore any such remarks that you may hear have been made.

Accept any invitations you receive and you will probably find a mate. I hope if you do that you will not be disappointed, as it is a pretty hard thing for a man to marry a ready-made family and be an ideal father. Although it is not quite as difficult a position as that of stepmother, which many women have filled successfully.

If no one suitable comes along, simply make up your mind that almost everyone has some heart hunger and there are various ways of helping yourself to feel less keenly. You can cultivate women friends who are lonely like yourself. All of them can't be cats. It is not possible.

You can make companions for your children and join some interesting clubs. And you can make up your mind that you have to have something to bear in this imperfect world. That you have been very fortunate to have had a good mate—which many women haven't—and that you are not going to make yourself unhappy because you have lost him. You will be deeply grateful that you have "loved and lost," and that you may find your mate again in some future life.

MISS S.: Your fiancé has forgiven you for your past with his lips only. In his heart he holds it against you and hesitates to marry on that account. Possibly if you put it up to him that he either has to give you up or set the wedding date he would be forced to disclose his real feelings. I know it would be hard to give him up, as you love him, but wouldn't it be fiercer to be married to a man who was always suspicious, who didn't trust you, and who was always throwing up your past to you?

Don't Sleep In A Hurry, Glad

By GLADYS GLAD

A friend of mine once said to me: "Gladys, I'm always in a rush. I even sleep in a hurry."

At the time, that seemed to me only a humorous expression. But the thought has often returned to me and I have been forced to conclude that too many of us really do "sleep in a hurry." That is one reason why there are so many strained faces, so many knit brows, so many darkly circled, dull eyes, and so many worry-lined countenances.

Calm, undisturbed sleep is the greatest wrinkle remover and a beauty restorer in the world. If you won't take sleep in hearty doses for the good of your health, then do it for your beauty's sake. Most of us hustle through the day, rush about during the evening, hasten home, hop into our nightgowns, and dash to bed to "knock off a few hours of sleep."

To get the most of your night's sleep—and you must realize how much it means to your appearance—you can't take your eight or nine hours' rest as just another job. If it is possible, you should spend at least a half hour before seeking your bed in relaxing your mind and body. If you like, to read a few minutes with a good book—not one that is too stimulating—is an excellent pre-bedtime occupation. Sit around a few minutes and sip a cool orange-ade or a warm glass of milk.

Don't go to your bed to think out all the day's problems, or to go worrying. If you're at high tension mentally, let your mind relax before you attempt to go to bed.

If you follow this practice, your sleep will be a "beauty sleep." You will awaken clear-eyed, eager to all the day's problems. Those dark circles and lines of worry and strain around your eyes and mouth, so conspicuous when you are tired, will miraculously disappear when you have been refreshed and rested by a good night's sleep.

Standard Weight

Cecilia and Lou C.: The standard weight for a girl 17 years of age and 5 feet 6 inches in height is about 128 pounds. A girl 24 years old and 5 feet 2 inches tall should weigh about 120 pounds. Ice cream is fattening.

Eyebrows

Pat and Mary Lou: Plain vaseline or odorless and tasteless castor oil applied to the eyebrows and eyelashes nightly will promote their growth. Light eyebrows are not pretty.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

ALL POWER—And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.—Matt. 28:18.

SOLDIERS AND WAR

An idea of the way in which men of military experience regard war was given at a church service held in connection with the American Legion convention at Boston, in an address by Gen. Everson, chief of the U. S. militia bureau. Gen. Everson denied that soldiers start wars, and he said that no one hates war more than the soldier who has been through it.

His idea was that wars are due to "Under cover treaties," to racial hatreds, and various manifestations of selfishness.

It would seem as if this military leader had about the right idea. There would never be any wars, if the statesmen and diplomats of the various countries could discuss their problems in a spirit of mutual tolerance and adjustment. It is the same as it is in labor controversies. If the employers and employees of an industry have friction, but if each side has a disposition to make compromises and concessions, they are likely to avoid any strike. Labor difficulties are created by capitalists and wage-earners who will make no concessions.

It is just the same with international quarrels. They are created when the statesmen of the various countries refuse to make concessions to each other. They show an uncompromising spirit that makes trouble anywhere it is manifested. Husbands and wives, parents and children, employers and employees, have to see each other's point of view, if they are going to work together harmoniously and avoid trouble.

When the statesmen of any nation take the position that they will consider the interest and rights of that nation alone, and will not give any consideration to the interests and rights of other nations, then they pursue a course that leads straight for trouble. It may not lead directly into war, but it creates those antagonisms in which the war making spirit grows, so that a war may be finally provoked by some relatively unimportant incident.

PESSIMISM AND OPTIMISM

Business men are apt to alternate between states of mind of buoyant optimism or profound pessimism. Things are all white or else all black. Just at present some business men and speculators see all black. They keep quoting various influences that have a disturbing effect, like unrest in China, India, and South America. Or they talk about the low prices of commodities and partial failure of farm relief.

These blue points of view studiously ignore the bright sides of the picture. Depressions never last long. The turbulent countries of Asia and South America blow up once in a while, but they are already quieting down.

The reason why business is quiet, is that people are going slow about purchases, fearing the future. The mere decline of demand for goods from foreign lands accounts for only a small part of whatever decline in business has occurred. Just as soon as people buy in advance of their absolute needs, as they usually do, business will start up in its usual volume.

PUT YOURSELF TO SCHOOL

Twenty-one thousand car owners answer questions, telling the New York Automobile club the chief faults that drivers have. Driving in the middle of the road heads the list. Edging by a line of cars in traffic ranks high. Turning without hand signals comes in for heavy condemnation. Trying to beat the traffic light is a dangerous and common fault. We will all do well to check up on our own driving. What is our worst offense and why? Let's break ourselves of bad driving habits. Let's get out of the morose class as fast as we can.

ON THE RIGHT FOOT

John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton, speaking at the beginning of the university's 184th year, points out that the acceptance of the responsibilities and duties of citizenship is "part of the tradition of Princeton." It should be part of the tradition of every university. Put the idea into the new student's mind that his education is to prepare him for the acceptance of the duties of citizenship, as well as to give him the inner satisfactions of knowledge, and you have started him "on the right foot."

President Spencer, of Hillsdale college, one of the best of small colleges, makes the first chapel of the year almost as impressive as commencement. He wants new students to get the idea they have come to college for a great life experience. He, too, believes in starting students on the right foot, teaching them that college is not to be taken lightly, as just four more years of football and social activities.

WHAT MONEY DOESN'T DO

Why is it that the great schools, colleges, universities that have the most millions in gifts and endowment are the ones that have the reputation for being so expensive the poor man's son doesn't even dare to send in his name? Why do the poor have to send their children—if they send them at all—to small and ill-equipped colleges—institutions that have little money with which to do things well? Something wrong somewhere in the distribution of funds or the purposes of philanthropists. If a multi-millionaire wants to give away ten millions he is more likely to give it to Yale or Harvard than to any one of a score of small colleges where it is needed a great deal and where it would help to educate the sons and daughters of the poor.

We read much about the difficulty of giving away money intelligently. Evidently it is indeed hard.

LOOSE FIGURES

People—Americans especially—love statistics. And we have a way of being impressed by them. We believe it when some investigator exclaims that the cost of crime in the United States is ten billion dollars a year. Of course such figures are rough estimates. They indicate only a trend.

Dieudonne, clever Frenchman, says we have a great fad for "round numbers." He reads that the great drought cost us "five million dollars a day." A man who sues another man for stealing his wife's attentions is entitled to $4,000, no more, no less. We like to dispose of things thus neatly.

When you hear broad statistics, do a little thinking yourself, and a little investigating, too, if you can and see if they are reasonable.

Pulitzer

Who was Joseph Pulitzer? Joseph Pulitzer was an American journalist born in Budapest, Hungary, April 10, 1847. His father was a Jew and his mother a Roman Catholic. At 17 he emigrated to the United States, where he served in the Civil war and then became a reporter on the Westliche Post in St. Louis, Mo. In 1876-77 he served as Washington correspondent of the New York Sun and afterwards spent some time in Europe as a special correspondent for the same paper. In 1879 he bought the St. Louis Evening Dispatch and the Evening Post, combining them as the Post-Dispatch. His greatest work was in the development of the New York World, which he acquired from Jay Gould in 1883, building up a circulation which had no rival until the advent of the Hearst newspapers, and proving an important factor in the presidential election of Grover Cleveland. He gave $1,000,000 to Columbia university for the building and endowment of a school of journalism. He died Oct. 9, 1911.

Atlantis

Where is the lost Atlantis? According to an ancient tradition, Atlantis was a large island situated in the Atlantic ocean over against the Pillars of Hercules. It is first mentioned by Plato, who describes it as the home of a powerful nation existing 9,000 years before his time, and which was finally engulfed by the sea. Plato gives a glowing description of the island and its fabulous history. The account of Plato was considered by some as a pure invention of the author's imagination, while others have looked upon it as a real tradition. Various attempts have been made to identify the island. The Canary Islands, the Scandinavian peninsula, the American continent and Crete have all been thought to be the land in question.

Valentino

What was Rudolph Valentino's last picture and will any of his pictures be shown again? Rudolph Valentino died after making "The Eagle." From time to time a Valentino picture is shown. A letter to the United Artists in New York might give information of possible future showings.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—Thirty years ago, Frankie Bailey was known as the woman with the finest pair of legs on Broadway. She was a member of the Weber and Fields aggregation. When the famous music hall closed Frankie Bailey drifted out with the gang and for the last 25 years we've been hearing of her here, there and everywhere, engaged in the most outlandish endeavors.

A couple of years ago she came back to New York and for a time had a job as hostess in one of the hotel's. Then her health failed, her luck broke, and today, at the age of 71, she's living in a little furnished room down on the Jersey Coast, nearly destitute.

ADVENT OF PRICE TAG

The democracy of the price tag is more or less a recent development on Fifth Avenue. Some years ago its merchandise prices were set on having the street famed as the rendezvous of the rich.

Then old man Woolworth came along with his red sign, his jelly-ban basement and the artificial paper flowers in the front window. Old Lady Childs had preceded Woolworth on Fifth Avenue; and even old Lady Childs shied the pancake griddle into the back-ground as a bow to the Fifth Avenue prejudice against the plebeian.

It was different with Woolworth. He couldn't follow the Childs precedent and trim his sales. Reduce the hue of the red-headed Woolworth sign by one tone, and the glad, effulgent don't-give-a-dam-ard of the institution would be gone forever.

The Fifth Avenue crowd spent many a sleepless night when F. W. stuck his bean above the horizon of their sweet-scented, stained-glass, billion-dollar-baitwick.

But fate had arranged things so that Brother Woolworth could match the Merchant Princes dollar for dollar and, after all, that

KEEPING ILLINOIS POLITICS PURE

WASHINGTON.—Aviation is a difficult subject for inexperienced to approach with any prospect of obtaining much information that it can rely on.

Fliers are such fans that it is hard not to suspect them of over-enthusiasm—a suspicion in which inexperienced finds some expert encouragement; capable army and navy men, of the old school, but well versed in aeronautics possibilities, while recognizing aviation as highly important to both their services, nevertheless insist that many of the claims made for it are vastly exaggerated. Replying, however, the flying enthusiasts refer to these old timers as has-beens. How is inexperience to judge between them?

There also is the dispute between flying men themselves—as to the relative merits of heavier-than-air craft.

This controversy has been in full eruption lately, due to England's recent loss of the R-101, but it is no nearer a settlement than ever, because of the British dirigible's use of hydrogen, admittedly dangerous; whereas non-combustible helium (obtainable only in the United States) is chiefly employed here—and likely to be exclusively employed henceforward, as a sequel to the R-101's destruction.

True, the army and navy consensus is that the R-101 explosion was simply incidental to some other accident and not primarily responsible for the catastrophe. Hydrogen likewise has the advantage of 15 to 20 per cent greater lifting capacity than helium.

For all that, the military preference of the inert gas is unmistakable.

Heavier-than-air craft exponents naturally point to the R-101's fate in support of their long-standing criticism of lighter-than-air vessels as necessarily fragile. Advocates of the latter type, though careful to avoid comment suggestive of a poor opinion of British construction or navigation, evidently entertain doubts of the British dirigible's airworthiness and perhaps of the competency of its handling.

At any rate, Rear Admiral Moffett's prompt denial of any intention on the United States navy's part to modify the plans of America's dirigible construction at Akron, O., generally was interpreted as implying officialdom's belief that the R-101's weaknesses, if any, already had been guarded against in Uncle Sam's newest design.

NOW A PLAY

Countless versions of the "love" story of "Frankie" and "Johnnie" have been wafted up and down the land, some vibrantly imaginative, most of them overlaid with a melancholy mediocrity, distressing in the extreme.

It remained for dear old Broadway to hammer a stage production out of the ballad and for the literati of The Lane to plunge into research along the "Frankie and Johnnie" trail that has resulted in a book by that name, the author being John Huston.

A trail of that character naturally would end in disillusion. "Frankie," at the age of fifty-eight, is supposed to be running a shoe-shining parlor in Portland, Ore., and is said to be "touchy about discussing her past."

signs before the overseas catastrophe.

The commerce department's view of aviation problems, as might be expected, is somewhat different from army and navy experts'.

The military contingent, of course, are prepared to take risks. Yet even among army (more particularly than navy) men, lighter-than-air craft, obviously are looked on more askance than previously, since the R-101 disaster. "Too vulnerable for front line work," is the verdict—outside the circle of the actual dirigible designers.

"They have one advantage—they can hover," it is agreed, "but, in the main, their sphere of usefulness is toward the rear, for the hurry-up transport of supplies and officers over roadless or automobile congested areas."

Without any especial hostility to dirigible travel, commerce department aviation's interest always has been centered principally upon airplane development.

Europe, Secretary Lamont's flying experts concede, may offer a field for lighter-than-air transportation—many big cities, close together; a dense population, furnishing passengers in considerable numbers, with a limited amount of freight as a side line.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

BUSY BUMPS INTO A SPY

Actions speak louder than words in Ant-Hill Town. And in a jiffy Busy was hoof-footing it toward the dairy, Peter close at her heels, anxious to see what happened when Busy milked a cow. When she had gone but a few paces Busy stopped in her tracks and spoke over her shoulder.

"I hope we will find everything all right. I fear trouble."

Busy spoke solemnly. Peter was startled.

"What sort of trouble?" asked he. "Do, for mercy's sake, be careful, Busy. There's no sense in running into danger."

"No, I suppose not." For a second Busy seemed ready to turn back. Then she straightened her shoulders. "Nor is there any sense in imagining trouble where there may be none. The wisest thing to do is to keep a straight course until there's some reason to turn aside. The whole thing's this: Yesterday I happened to bump into an enemy scout, and well I knew she'd been spying on our dairy. Doubtless she knows exactly how many cows we have, and the chances are that one of these days the enemy will storm our town and unless we can defend ourselves they will steal our cows and drive them back to their own ant-hill. We don't fear the neighboring tribe—they are only black ants like our selves—but our chances would be mighty slim if the terrible red ants should swarm down upon us."

"No use in believing trouble," remarked Peter, who was sure Busy was frightening herself by her own wild stories.

"Right!" cried Busy, cheering up at once. "I shall fight when the time comes, or I shall run away, but now—forward, march!"

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Stuffed Veal Chops
Scalloped Potatoes
Broccoli with Hollandaise Sauce
Pineapple Salad
Sand Tarts
Tea

Use this menu for a guest luncheon or dinner. Pineapple salad may be made by using the sliced pineapple sprinkled either with finely chopped nuts or cheese balls.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Veal Chops—Have the chops cut thick, about an inch. Wipe off with a damp cloth and place in a greased baking pan. Prepare a force meat of one and one-half cups uncooked chicken breast put through the fine blade of the grinder, one cup dried bread crumbs, three-fourths cup chicken stock, two egg whites beaten stiff, one teaspoon salt and a dash of cayenne. Cook the crumbs and stock to a paste, add the other ingredients and spread thickly over each chop. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, for 25 minutes, then reduce the heat to moderate, 350 degrees, and continue cooking for 25 minutes. If the chops seem a little dry, baste with melted butter and water, or with some of the chicken stock.

Broccoli with Hollandaise Sauce—Steam one-half cup butter, three egg yolks, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon white pepper, one-half cup boiling water. Beat the butter to a cream, add the unbeaten egg yolks one at a time, and beat well between each addition. Add lemon juice and seasonings. About five minutes before serving time add the boiling water, a little at a time, stirring constantly. Place over hot water and cook until sauce thickens like a boiled custard.

Tie the broccoli in a single thickness of cheesecloth and drop into boiling water, or steam over boiling water. Remove in exactly 15 minutes and serve at once. Overcooking will give the vegetable a strong, undesirable flavor.

Sand Tarts—One-half cup shortening, one cup sugar, one egg, beaten, one and three-fourths cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one egg white, one tablespoon sugar, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, blanched almonds. Cream shortening, and add sugar slowly, then the beaten egg. Sift the flour and baking powder together and add. Chill. Roll out a small portion of the dough at a time, just as thin as possible, and cut with a doughnut cutter. Brush over with the slightly beaten egg white, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon mixed together, and decorate with the split halves of the almonds. Place on a greased sheet and bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, until a delicate straw color.

Removing Ink Stains—Ink stains can be removed from the fingers by rubbing with a cloth moistened with household ammonia. Rinse the hands in clear water afterwards. Lemon juice is an excellent remover of rust stains from white fabrics.

Follow Instructions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FIRST, THE diabetic patient should realize that with faithful observation of instructions, the diabetic condition will improve. Few cases of cure are on record, and in most instances treatment will have to be continued for life. But treatment definitely prolongs life, and makes the condition better.

Second, the life expectation of the diabetic depends on intelligence and character. The diabetic life is not an easy one; it is monotonous to have to weigh food and be on a diet indefinitely—your doctor realizes that. Those who give up fall. Diabetes is death to fools, faddists, cowards and weaklings.

Third, the patient must know how to calculate diets. A table of all common foods, showing how much carbohydrate, fat and protein each contains is necessary. Such a table is found in all the manuals for diabetic patients listed in my Monday article. The patient must have a small kitchen scale to weigh the food on. In the course of time this becomes so familiar that the weighing can be dispensed with—the patient can tell quite accurately by sight how much a piece of bread, an orange or an egg weighs.

Fourth, how to test the urine for sugar. For this a glass test tube, an alcohol lamp, a medicine dropper, and a supply of Benedict's solution is necessary. Benedict's solution is made up as follows:

Copper sulphate (pure crystallized) 17.3 grams, sodium potassium citrate 173 grams, sodium carbonate (anhydrous) 100 grams, distilled water sufficient to make 1000 c. c.

The citrate and carbonate are dissolved together, in about 700 c. c. of water, with the aid of heat. The copper sulphate is dissolved separately in 100 c. c. of water. After complete solution, the copper solution is poured slowly into the other and mixed with constant stirring. The mixture is then diluted to 1000 c. c. with the rest of the distilled water. It will keep indefinitely.

To test for sugar put a teaspoonful (5 c. c.) of the Benedict's solution in a clean test tube. Eight drops of urine are added. The mixture is boiled over the alcohol flame. If sugar is present a green or orange cloud (precipitate) occurs. If there is no sugar the mixture remains clear.

The patient must also learn the importance of collecting and measuring a 24-hour specimen of urine.

The urine voided, after meals should be kept separate. Under treatment the urine voided before the noon meal (the morning urine, M.), that until the evening meal (the afternoon urine, A.); that until retiring (the evening urine, E.) and that after retiring and including the before breakfast voidance (the night urine, N.) should be examined for sugar separately. Thus the particular time of meal when too much carbohydrate has been taken or too little insulin given can be determined.

Fifth, many patients need insulin and must learn how to give it to themselves. It is always given hypodermically by a hypodermic syringe. How to give the injection without causing infection is the essential part.

Sixth, the care of the skin and feet should be learned. Some of the most troublesome complications are boils or carbuncles anywhere on the skin, and gangrene and infection of the toes.

(EDITORS NOTE: Dr. Clendenning cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest however they will be taken up in order in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendenning, care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.)

Widow Advised To Wed

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Heart Hungry, that phrase grips one, doesn't it? We may be visualizing a young man or woman who cannot make friends or attract lovers. It may be a child who for some reason lacks the love of parents. It may be older people who are bereft of their mates, or who have never had a life companion.

And it may be a man or woman who yearns to have children to love and cherish and who can never have them.

Very few people quite escape heart hunger at some time in their lives. Sometimes, it is necessary to accept the fact that the hunger never will be satisfied. Then it is we have, for our own happiness—safety, even—resort to what the psychologists call a "constructive compromise."

The following letter tells of one woman who is seeking relief from her heart hunger:

"Dear Virginia Lee: You have such a happy way of solving other people's troubles, so I'm bringing my problem to you.

"Am a widow by death and have children. Have come out alone, but never without the children. Have done no wrong yet know the other widows in the neighborhood, of which there are many, have made remarks.

"Now, Virginia Lee, what I want to know is, is this wrong? I do want to marry and I know it would be a wonderful home for a good man, a handsome man like 'Troubled H' if he, in return, would take an interest in my children.

"It is terrible to be so lonesome for a companion of your own age. Life is hard at the best, but with a pal many of the hard places become easy. Please do not put this in the scrap basket. I will anxiously await your answer.

"Heart Hungry." I know just how you must feel. Heart Hungry, and see nothing wrong or unusual in the fact that you want to marry again. I have had some attention from men since your husband died, as you imply, it may be these other widows are a little envious, as they, too, may be heart hungry. Try to think that and you won't feel so unkindly toward them if they make slurring remarks. At the same time, ignore any such remarks that you may hear have been made.

Accept any invitations you receive and you probably will find a new mate. I hope if you do that you will not be disappointed, as it is a pretty hard thing for a man to marry a ready-made family and be an ideal father. Although it is not quite as difficult a position as that of stepmother, which many women have filled successfully.

If no one suitable comes along, simply make up your mind that almost everyone has some heart hunger and there are various ways of helping yourself to feel it less keenly. You can cultivate women friends who are lonely like yourself. All of them can't be exes. It is not possible.

You can make companions of your children and join some interesting clubs. And you can make up your mind that you have to have something to bear in this imperfect world. That you have been very fortunate to have had a good mate, which many women haven't—and that you are not going to make yourself unhappy because you have lost him. You will be deeply grateful that you have "loved and lost," and that you may find your mate again in some future life.

MISS S.: Your fiancé has forgiven you for your past with his lips only. In his heart he holds it against you and hesitates to marry on that account. Possibly if you put it up to him that he either has to give you up or set the wedding date he would be forced to decide his real feelings. I know it would be hard to give him up, as you love him, but wouldn't it be "fierce" to be married to a man who was always suspicious, who didn't trust you, and who was always throwing up your past to you?

Don't Sleep In A Hurry, Glad

By GLADYS GLAD

A friend of mine once said to me: "Gladys, I'm always in a rush. I even sleep in a hurry."

At the time, that seemed to me only a humorous expression. But the thought has often recurred to me and I have been forced to conclude that too many of us really do "sleep in a hurry." That is one reason why there are so many strained faces, so many knitted brows, so many darkly circled, dull eyes, and so many worry-lined countenances.

Calm, undisturbed sleep is the greatest wrinkle remover and beauty restorer in the world. If you won't take sleep in hearty doses for the good of your health, then do it for your beauty's sake. Most of us hustle through the day, rush about during the evening, hasten home, hop into our nightgowns, and dash to bed—"knock off a few hours of sleep."

To get the most of your night's sleep—and you must realize how much it means to your appearance—you can't take your eight or nine hours' rest as just another job. If it is possible, you should spend at least a half hour before seeking your bed in relaxing your mind and body. If you like to read, a few minutes with a good book—not one that is too stimulating—is an excellent pre-bedtime occupation. Sit around a few minutes and sip a cool orange-ade or a warm glass of milk.

Don't go to your bed to think out all the day's problems, or to do your worrying. If you're at high tension mentally, let your mind relax before you attempt to go to bed.

If you follow this practice, your sleep will be a "beauty sleep." You will awaken clear-eyed, eager to all the day's problems. Those dark circles and lines of worry and strain around your eyes and mouth, so conspicuous when you are tired, will miraculously disappear when you have been refreshed and rested by a good night's sleep.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

The suggestion made by Joe Meyer, football coach at Xavier University in Cincinnati, that football teams be composed of twelve instead of eleven players and that the twelfth player assume the present duties of the quarterback with the single exception he would be used exclusively as a field general and take no actual part in the physical playing of the game has the unqualified endorsement of this department.

The advantages of this plan are numerous. Not only would it give a large number of undersized youths an opportunity to become non-playing members of every high school and college football team in existence, but every game would be more intelligently played, we believe.

The duties of this twelfth or extra member of the team would be comparable to those of a coxswain in shells. A coxswain does not rowing himself, he is merely a small youth of not much weight who directs his crew in a race. He is usually a youth who knows, probably better than most of the members of his crew, just what should be done at all times, is a quick thinker and can be counted upon in an emergency.

Under Meyer's proposed plan, the twelfth member of a football team would do nothing more than direct his team, deciding what plays to use. He would be the proxy of the coach out there on the field.

The quarterback is just about the most valuable player on a team. The success or failure of a team often rests with him and to his judgment at critical times. He is the main cog in every football machine and when he is injured, as is too often the case, his team is placed under an immense handicap. The idea is to be commended and we, for one, would like to see it tried out.

The spread of infantile paralysis in Clinton County which resulted in the closing of city and county schools, made a mess of things for Wilmington High's football team. Enforced idleness on the part of the team has resulted. Wilmington's scheduled game with Washington C. H. last week had to be cancelled as well as the game with McClain High of Greenfield carded for Friday this week.

Because of the ban against gatherings of school children, the squad is unable to practice and by the time the edict is lifted the quaker squad will have abstained from daily practice sessions for ten days.

A ten-day lay-off is enough to wreck the chances of any football team for a successful season. Hillsboro High gridders are in the same fix.

Attempts will be made by Wilmington to re-schedule the games with Washington C. H. and Greenfield but this is also a big problem in itself because of conflicting dates of the three schools during the remainder of the season.

Some time ago we had our say on the subject of miniature this and miniature that in the realm of sports, mentioning, in passing, that miniature football would be next. Now we learn that for the benefit of fans at Athens, O., who will be unable to follow Ohio University's football team to Cleveland this week, Athletic Director O. C. Bird has arranged for a play-by-play account of the game to be reproduced on a miniature field at Ohio gymnasium.

GREENE COUNTY REPUBLICANS TO ATTEND SPRINGFIELD RALLY

A delegation of between 300 and 400 Greene Countyans is expected to attend the mass meeting of Republicans of the Seventh Congressional District at Memorial hall in Springfield the night of October 24, which is being planned as the outstanding Republican rally of the present off-year election campaign in this district.

A committee composed of James Adair, Attorney Marcus McCallister, Earl Short, Carl Ervin, Karl R. Babb, Miss Allegra Hawes, Miss Helen Dods and Paul H. Creswell, has been appointed by the Republican organization in this county to promote interest in the political rally locally in Xenia.

The Xenia delegation will assemble at the Court House at 6:45 p.m. on the evening of the meeting, form as long an auto caravan as possible and proceed in a body to Memorial Hall, where the floor space will be divided off and blocks of seats set aside for delegations from each of the nine counties composing the district.

Republicans in Yellow Springs to the number of 100 are expected to attend the rally, being transported in a chartered traction car, while Cedarville and Jamestown will also send large delegations to the gathering, at which Governor Cooper, James McCulloch, candidate for senator, and others will deliver addresses.

JACK CICUTO

The famous Moosehead football team will invade Dayton to play the strong Stivers High School eleven Saturday and outstanding in the backfield this season is Jack Cicuto, weighing about 160 pounds, who was an all-state selection last year among Illinois prep schools. Cicuto, halfback and punter, shown in the above picture, averaged fifty-six yards with his boots last season and frequently he kicks spirals seventy and seventy-five yards. He is an aggressive, fast boy and is equally good at open field running or line driving.

Why did this man come to The Criterion this Fall?

Outside of an occasional pair of garters, this buyer didn't know us.

In his 11 years in Xenia his inside breast pocket had never carried our label.

This Fall he needed a suit. From his arm chair his newspapers had talked "lower prices." He determined to find them if possible.

One store was visited without success. Then the second, third and fourth. Then something made him think of us—"well, he'd try it as a last resort."

In he came, a little skeptical. In 5 minutes of fabric and model examination he became enthusiastic. When he learned our prices he became a customer.

You too, can find lower prices at The Criterion.

The suggestion made by Joe Meyer, football coach at Xavier University in Cincinnati, that football teams be composed of twelve instead of eleven players and that the twelfth player assume the present duties of the quarterback with the single exception he would be used exclusively as a field general and take no actual part in the physical playing of the game has the unqualified endorsement of this department.

The advantages of this plan are numerous. Not only would it give a large number of undersized youths an opportunity to become non-playing members of every high school and college football team in existence, but every game would be more intelligently played, we believe.

The duties of this twelfth or extra member of the team would be comparable to those of a coxswain in shells. A coxswain does no rowing himself, he is merely a small youth of not much weight who directs his crew in a race. He is usually a youth who knows, probably better than most of the members of his crew, just what should be done at all times, is a quick thinker and can be counted upon in an emergency.

Under Meyer's proposed plan, the twelfth member of a football team would do nothing more than direct his team, deciding what plays to use. He would be the proxy of the coach out there on the field.

The quarterback is just about the most valuable player on a team. The success or failure of a team often rests with him and to his judgment at critical times. He is the main cog in every football machine and when he is injured, as is too often the case, his team is placed under an immense handicap. The idea is to be commended and we, for one, would like to see it tried out.

The spread of infantile paralysis in Clinton County which resulted in the closing of city and county schools, made a mess of things for Wilmington High's football team.

Enforced idleness on the part of the team has resulted. Wilmington's scheduled game with Washington C. H. last week had to be cancelled as well as the game with McClain High of Greenfield slated for Friday this week.

Because of the ban against gatherings of school children, the squad is unable to practice and by the time the edict is lifted the Quaker squad will have obtained from daily practice sessions for ten days.

A ten-day lay-off is enough to wreck the chances of any football team for a successful season. Hillsboro High gridders are in the same fix.

Attempts will be made by Wilmington to re-schedule the games with Washington C. H. and Greenfield but this is also a big problem in itself because of conflicting dates of the three schools during the remainder of the season.

Some time ago we had our say on the subject of miniature this and miniature that in the realm of sports, mentioning, in passing, that miniature football would be next. Now we learn that for the benefit of fans at Athens, O., who will be unable to follow Ohio University's football team to Cleveland this week, Athletic Director O. C. Bird has arranged for a play-by-play account of the game to be reproduced on a miniature field at Ohio gymnasium.

GREENE COUNTY REPUBLICANS TO ATTEND SPRINGFIELD RALLY

A delegation of between 300 and 400 Greene Countyans is expected to attend the mass meeting of Republicans of the Seventh Congressional District at Memorial hall in Springfield the night of October 24, which is being planned as the outstanding Republican rally of the present off-year election campaign in this district.

A committee composed of James Adair, Attorney Marcus McCallister, Earl Short, Carl Ervin, Karl R. Babb, Miss Allegra Hawes, Miss Helen Dodds and Paul H. Creswell, has been appointed by the Republican organization in this county to promote interest in the political rally locally in Xenia.

The Xenia delegation will assemble at the Court House at 6:45 p. m. on the evening of the meeting, form as long an auto caravan as possible and proceed in a body to Memorial Hall, where the floor space will be divided off and blocks of seats set aside for delegations from each of the nine counties composing the district.

Republicans in Yellow Springs to the number of 100 are expected to attend the rally, being transported in a chartered traction car, while Cedarville and Jamestown will also send large delegations to the gathering at which Governor Cooper, Roscoe McCulloch, candidate for senator, and others will deliver addresses.

JACK CICUTO

The famous Mooseheart football team will invade Dayton to play the strong Stivers High School eleven Saturday and outstanding in the backfield this season is Jack Cicuto, weighing about 160 pounds, who was an all-state selection last year among Illinois prep schools. Cicuto, halfback and punter, shown in the above picture, averaged fifty-six yards with his boots last season and frequently he kicks spirals seventy and seventy-five yards. He is an aggressive, fast boy and is equally good at open field running or line driving.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS PLANNED

Plans for a training school for Sunday School teachers and workers of Xenia to be held November 17 to 21 are being announced by the Xenia Ministerial Association which made final arrangements for the school at a special called meeting Thursday morning.

The committee of ministers on arrangements has secured teachers who are accredited by the state department of teacher training. Only one course will be provided and those taking the course will recite five nights in the one week. Lessons will last two hours each evening and at the close of the week teachers will receive one credit on a teachers' training certificate. Courses will be offered in "Primary Methods and Principles," "School Administration," "The Bible—Old Testament Course," "Principles of Teaching" or a course in pedagogy.

Over one hundred teachers and Sunday School workers are expected to enroll in the course according to the registration committee, which is composed of the Rev. W. H. Tilford, chairman; J. J. Stone and H. E. Eichman. Any advance registrations can be sent to the Rev. Mr. Tilford. The Rev. A. H. Beardsley is chairman of the committee on arrangements and the Revs. S. L. Brill and Adrian G. Lebold are his assistants. Dr. H. B. McElree, the Rev. Russell Burkett and the Rev. J. R. Lunsford form the committee to select a place to hold the school.

Further announcements concerning the teachers for the training school will be made at a later date.

Why did this man come to The Criterion this Fall?

Outside of an occasional pair of garters, this buyer didn't know us.

In his 11 years in Xenia his inside breast pocket had never carried our label.

This Fall he needed a suit. From his arm chair his newspapers had talked "lower prices." He determined to find them if possible.

One store was visited without success. Then the second, third and fourth. Then something made him think of us—"well, he'd try it as a last resort."

In he came, a little skeptical. In 5 minutes of fabric and model examination he became enthusiastic. When he learned our prices he became a customer.

You too, can find lower prices at The Criterion.

"Science is revolutionizing all forms of manufacture. The manufacturers of LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes have extended me the courtesy of an invitation to their factories. I was not able to accept but have taken the opportunity to read the reports of scientific men as to the achievements in their factories.

"It is clear that in no line has science been more intelligently applied than in the making of cigarettes."

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES, to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. Clark Howell to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Howell appears on this page.

Another feature of the proposed exercise will be a parade, preceding the service, and Captain Cornwell was designated to act as grand marshal. He has appointed Ohmer Tate, Dr. B. R. McClellan, C. L. Darlington, L. A. Davis and Peter Shagin as his aides.

An additional sub-committee will be a publicity committee consisting of Harold Owens, Rotarian, as chairman; R. A. Higgins and P. W. Frame, of the Downtown Country Club; Mrs. Rose Mower, of the B. P. W. Club and a representative of the merchant's organization.

In the course of the meeting a brief explanation of the dedication ceremony was given by Captain Cornwell, who emphasized the fact of the new armory should be developed into a real community center, to be utilized by business men at noons, for gym classes and any sports. Captain James Murphy, Cincinnati, regimental inspecting officer, was also introduced to the gathering by Captain Cornwell.

All of the committees named at the meeting are to function independently and will make a report of what progress they have made at the next meeting, which will be held at the call of Chairman Fuller.

Captain Cornwell announces that the personnel of the armory board which will administer the affairs of the new building is virtually complete. Dr. Marshall Best will serve as the medical board member and Attorney W. A. Miller as the legal member. The ministerial member has not yet been appointed.

Captain Murphy, regular army officer, who attended the meeting Wednesday night, is expected to conduct the annual property inspection of the local National Guard unit October 27. The inspection was originally scheduled for October 20 but was postponed in view of the fact Company L is now engaged in the task of moving its equipment into the new armory quarters.

An additional sub-committee will be a publicity committee consisting of Harold Owens, Rotarian, as chairman; R. A. Higgins and P. W. Frame, of the Downtown Country Club; Mrs. Rose Mower, of the B. P. W. Club and a representative of the merchant's organization.

In the course of the meeting a brief explanation of the dedication ceremony was given by Captain Cornwell, who emphasized the fact of the new army should be developed into a real community center, to be utilized by business men at noons, for gym classes and all sports. Captain James Murphy, Cincinnati, regimental inspecting officer, was also introduced to the gathering by Captain Cornwell.

All of the committees named at the meeting are to function independently and will make a report of what progress they have made at the next meeting, which will be held at the call of Chairman Fuller.

Captain Cornwell announces that the personnel of the army board which will administer the affairs of the new building is virtually complete. Dr. Marshall Best will serve as the medical board member and Attorney W. A. Miller as the legal member. The ministerial member has not yet been appointed.

Captain Murphy, regular army officer, who attended the meeting Wednesday night, is expected to conduct the annual property inspection of the local National Guard unit October 27. The inspection was originally scheduled for October 20 but was postponed in view of the fact Company L is now engaged in the task of moving its equipment into the new army quarters.

CORPORATION BONDS

Article No. 10
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—It is obvious that no hard and fast rule can be laid down as an infallible guide to the safety and attractiveness of corporation bonds. They must be regarded in their individual relationships, with many different factors entering in, such for example as the method of their issuance, the security behind them, the financial standing of the issuing companies and the position of the bonds in the capital structure of the corporations.

There are many varieties of corporation bond issues, some of them representing the investment of funds in tangible property not directly related to the success of the business of the companies; some the investment in specific form of plant and machinery which would not be so valuable if detached from particular industries; some resting on nothing more than the established credit of the corporations by which they were issued.

The first and second may generally be regarded as mortgage bonds, the third as debentures. Mortgage bonds are further classified in relation to their standing and priority, whether, for example, they represent a first or second lien on salable property, or whether some other obligation holds a prior position in case of forced distribution of assets.

For purposes of classification, investment corporation bonds are divided into three main groups.

1. Railroad bonds, including obligations of steam railroad companies, electric railroad companies, interurban traction companies, and, where not directly controlled by a municipality or state, street railway bonds.

2. Industrial bonds, including the bonded obligations of manufacturing companies of every character, steel, copper, oil, sugar, shipping and other industries which play such an important part in the building up of the business of the country.

3. Public utility bonds. In general, public utility corporations are organized to furnish a specific service for every member of a large community, such as providing of light supply, power, transportation, etc., and are under the direct supervision of boards of control or commissioners appointed by Federal or State Legislatures. For that reason, their activities are not directly classified with industrial corporations, though some investment experts draw no special distinction between them and private individual corporations.

Investment in bonds in sound out doubt the best method of employment of surplus funds of American investors and investing institutions in the great enterprises of the country without sharing in all hazards of such enterprises. An investor will not, of course, deliberately loan his funds to an unprofitable company, but even here it is possible to so safeguard the issuance of bonds that funds can be recovered in case of failure of the company concerned. A first mortgage bond on valuable property, the security of which does not depend on the successful operation of the issuing company, but on the market value of the property securing the mortgage, is as safe an investment as the business world can provide.

The investor in such bonds performs a double service. Not only does he secure for himself a satisfactory income, but, through the employment of his surplus funds in industry, he makes his contribution to the building up of national enterprise and increases the productive facilities of the country.

By the wise investments of his funds the investor of large means may be as prominent a factor in the prosperity of the country as the individual who makes direct use of these funds.

IT WAS LOCKED A RAPID-FIRE MYSTERY STORY BY JOHN HAWK

He only then realized that he hadn't looked at his room. Lady Dorothy was gently saying goodbye, and leaving him alone with the Inspector. Her eyes were misty, but she smiled as she again took his hand in both hers.

Robinson couldn't speak. A sob rose in his throat. He pressed her hand convulsively. And found himself alone with Inspector Linscott.

The long-suffering worm has turned and Broadway has delivered its answer to Hollywood, while the Broadway crowd doubles up in laughter.

The platform is none other than that of the Music Box Theater, partly controlled by songwriter Irving Berlin himself and the answer is in the form of a play. "Once in a Lifetime" is the title and it is brazenly comic satire which Moss Hart and George S.

ness which they write when they get back to Broadway.

This last thrust is not personal as neither Hart nor Kaufman has ever been in Hollywood and the latter visits it only as Lawrence Vail, Broadway playwright, the part in which he is making his stage debut in "Once in a Lifetime." Kaufman once collaborated with Marc Connelly, another famous playwright, in a number of successful productions.

Another Broadway play that has been causing considerable comment is "Nine to Six," the English play with the all-woman cast of Aimee and Philip Stuart. It is pleasing audiences, especially the women with its staggering background of gilded gowns and wraps. Those three casual ladies who dig their gold in Zoe Akins' new play at the Harris, "The Greeks Had a Word For It," use their stunning wardrobes to prove that the wages of sin is not always death. But the Akins play is not as straightforward as "Nine to Six."

It is admitted that the smiles of the latter were a trifle wry, but the gentlemen were sporting enough to carry through good-naturedly as subsequent visitors from Hollywood have also done.

Yet all is not laughter. Many of the shafts of Hart and Kaufman are so cunningly barbed that they can't be shaken off—and they're leaving stings that are bound to bring protests if not reprisals. One of Manhattan's leading film critics has already gently reproached the playwrights for occasionally getting too serious in their satire on "defenseless Hollywood."

He points out the Broadway playwrights, actors and stage technicians who are invited to join the studio staffs and then left to sit idly twiddling their thumbs while the mad whirl continues, are not so unfortunate as some seem to think. SPRAYS AND DUSTS, NEEDED DURING FALL AND WINTER

Fungicidal sprays and dusts are needed more in the fall and early winter months to prevent diseases in the flower greenhouse than at any other time of the year, according to Paul Tilford, associate in botany at the Ohio Experiment Station. It is at this period that many diseases get started which later become serious. Short, fall days, and dark, rainy weather bring about a high humidity which is favorable for the rapid development and spread of diseases.

Practically all sprays and dusts used for disease control can be divided into two groups; those containing copper and those containing sulphur.

The common standard copper spray is bordeaux mixture. Copper dusts are also available but they are more adapted to outside flower crops than those grown inside. Bordeaux mixture can be prepared by the florist or it may be purchased already prepared and ready to be mixed with water when it is used. Bordeaux is effective against such diseases as carnation rust, bacterial leaf spot of geranium, blight and anthracnose of snapdragon, and leaf spots of chrysanthemum.

Lime-sulphur is the standard sulphur spray. It may be bought in either liquid or dry form. The usual dilution of the liquid form is 1 to 40. Dry lime-sulphur is ordinarily used at about the rate of 1 ounce to 1 gallon of water. Lime-sulphur sprays in general are effective against mildews and rusts. Sulphur dusts are also effective in controlling mildew and rusts. Rose black spot and mildew, chrysanthemum mildew, hydrangea mildew, and snapdragon rust should all be treated with sulphur dusts.

In the application of either sprays or dusts to flowers, care should be used to keep the material off the blossoms. Most material stain the blossoms and some cause burning. The standard sprays and dusts are on the market and are reasonable in price. There are also numerous proprietary or commercial mixtures on the market, some of which are good and some of questionable value. The use of standard materials is recommended.

FRIENDS CHURCH TO STAGE RALLY DAY

An attendance of 200 persons is the goal set by the Friends Church, High and Chestnut Sts., when it observes Rally Day at services to be held next Sunday. Attendance at both the Sunday School and church services is being stressed.

The Rev. Russell Burkett, pastor, will give an illustrated sermon showing what can be accomplished by whole-hearted co-operation. Suitable souvenirs will be given to every one in attendance. The pastor announces that the Sunday School has had a steady growth in the past year and it is hoped that Sunday's services will be a fitting climax.

CONVICT AUTOIST

Wilbur C. Zell, N. Detroit St., veterinarian, whose auto is alleged to have side-swiped another car on N. Detroit St., afterward colliding with a traction car, was found guilty of a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith following a hearing Wednesday afternoon. Motion for a new trial was filed by Attorney L. T. Marshall, defense counsel, but Judge Smith deferred making a ruling on the motion for three days.

All Motorists want to go up that hill without shifting into second or low. All motorists, (going up that hill) do not want that constant sing and knock

All Motorists in Greene Co. can get genuine pleasure in driving by using Fleet Wing Ethyl Gas.

18 degrees quicker starting action. 27 degrees more pulling power and no knocks.
